Remote Electronic Ordering Systems

Many tens of thousands of Telxon terminals have been used for electronic ordering since the 1970's. These types of terminals offer very little in the way of functionality and portray an outdated and inefficient image to your customers. Since these terminals have not been manufactured for many years, they are becoming increasingly scarce, and have an unacceptably high failure rate.

ReOSsa is the electronic ordering system that allows you to offer the features and convenience your customers and users demand. ReOSsa consists of a small, handheld, barcode scanning terminal, and a docking cradle with a built-in modem. Despite its modest cost and small size, the barcode terminal offers the same features found in much more costly systems. Features such as Credits, Suggested Orders, and Inventory accompany the full featured core ordering functions. If ReOSsa doesn't have the features you need, we can either customize the application to your exact specification, or you can choose from one of our three other electronic ordering products.

Many of the features that we have built into the ReOSsa system will drive sales and increase your profits. The ReOSsa application will notify your customers of substitutions and discontinued items, supports force outs and pre-order notifications, displays sales and order history, displays promotions and supports a host of other features that until now were only available in expensive, high end systems. ReOSsa will improve your bottom line by increasing average order size and will minimize ordering errors and returns.

Simply put, DataPort® is the difference. All Taylorred Technologies products are designed to seamlessly integrate with our DataPort® Enterprise Communications Server, allowing our customers to realize the advantages of implementing new technologies without the expense and disturbance of having to replace their existing backend systems.
